February 2021

UK Consumer Tracker

January 2021

BORD BIA
Thinking House

What We Did

- ✓ Online Tracking Survey
- ✓ National Survey of UK Grocery Shoppers
- ✓ N=1,087
- ✓ Wave=10
- ✓ Fieldwork: 13th – 14th January 2021.

Why did we do it?

To enhance our understanding of the impact of Brexit and its ensuing economic effects on UK consumers and also to understanding their perceptions and attitudes to Ireland and Irish produce.

Methodology and Context

Bord Bia are continuing the tracking of UK grocery shoppers to gauge how the Brexit situation is impacting on attitudes towards the Rep. of Ireland and the core food & drink export categories.

This study is conducted via a nationally representative survey of UK grocery shoppers online and this is the 10th wave of research conducted to date. The fieldwork for this period was conducted between the 13th – 14th January 2021.

The survey focuses on a range of Brexit related topics including understanding the mood of the nation, future concerns, personal impact based on economic situation, perceptions of Rep. of Ireland food and drink vs. key competitor markets around being local, openness to choosing, trust, visibility and premium credentials. It also evaluates the extent that Rep. of Ireland food and drink would be missed should Brexit encourage a price increase or a limitation in availability of Irish produce.

Bord Bia's research partners for this project is OPINIONS

Mood of the Nation & Economic Outlook

BORD BIA
Thinking House

Mood of the Nation and Economic Outlook

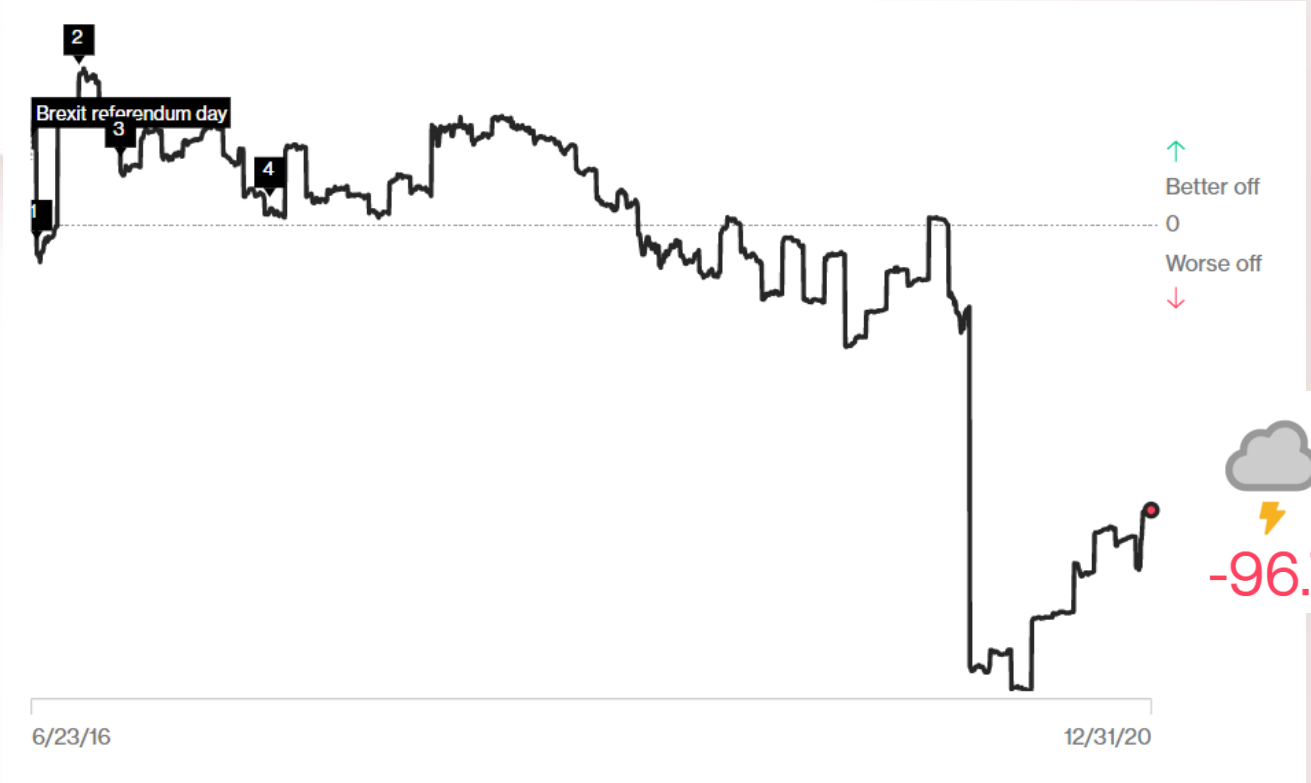
BORD BIA Thinking House

Brexit + Covid-19 still making economic outlook very gloomy (20th January 2021)

While there have been some signs of improvement since July 2020, the UK's economic wellbeing remains significantly below the long term average as indicated in the Bloomberg Brexit Barometer below.

The barometer is a custom index designed to show how the U.K. economy is responding to the Brexit process. It's made up of indicators for employment, inflation, growth and uncertainty. The higher the number, the healthier the economy—and vice versa.

That means the U.K.'s economic well-being—and that of its people—is below the long-term average.



(0.30 inflation + 0.05 activity + 0.08 employment + −0.53 uncertainty) × 100 multiplier = −10.0 barometer

Source: Bloomberg Brexit Barometer 26th May 2020

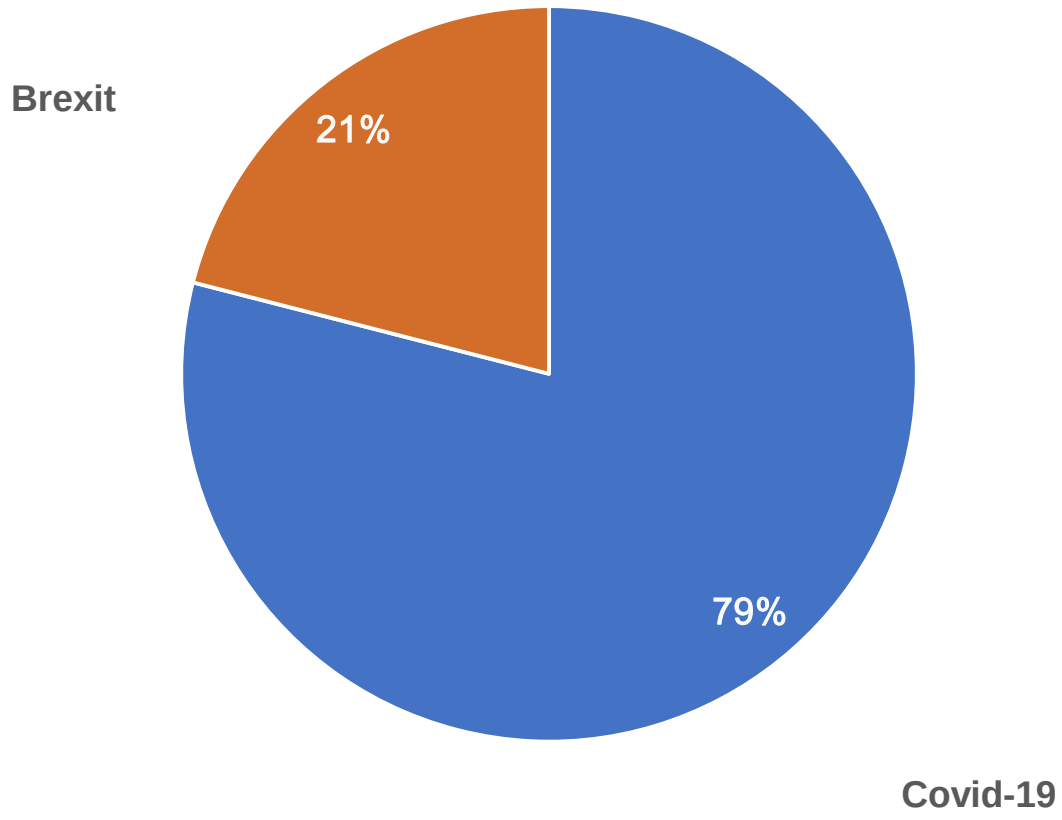
https://www.bloomberg.com/graphics/2017-brexit-barometer/

Covid-19 vs. Brexit – Which is of greatest Concern?

From Bord Bia's Covid Indicators Tracking Research October 2020

(Base: Adults 18+ in the United Kingdom, n=1,079)

Which of these is of greatest concern to you personally?



The continued concern of Covid-19 is evident with 8 in 10 UK adults feeling it is more concerning than Brexit.

Source: Bord Bia/Opinions Covid Indicators Tracker October 2020

Mood of the Nation and Economic Outlook (JUNE)

BORD BIA Thinking House

Brexit taking a back seat to Covid-19 currently

Given the impact of Covid-19 in the UK, the debate around Brexit has taken a back seat for now despite ongoing trade negotiations between the UK and the EU. So much so that 9 in 10 UK grocery shoppers cite Covid-19 as a greater concern than Brexit in the next 12 months, and a majority cite Covid-19 as a greater concern in the next 5 years. (Note: Data Collected June 2020)

Confidence

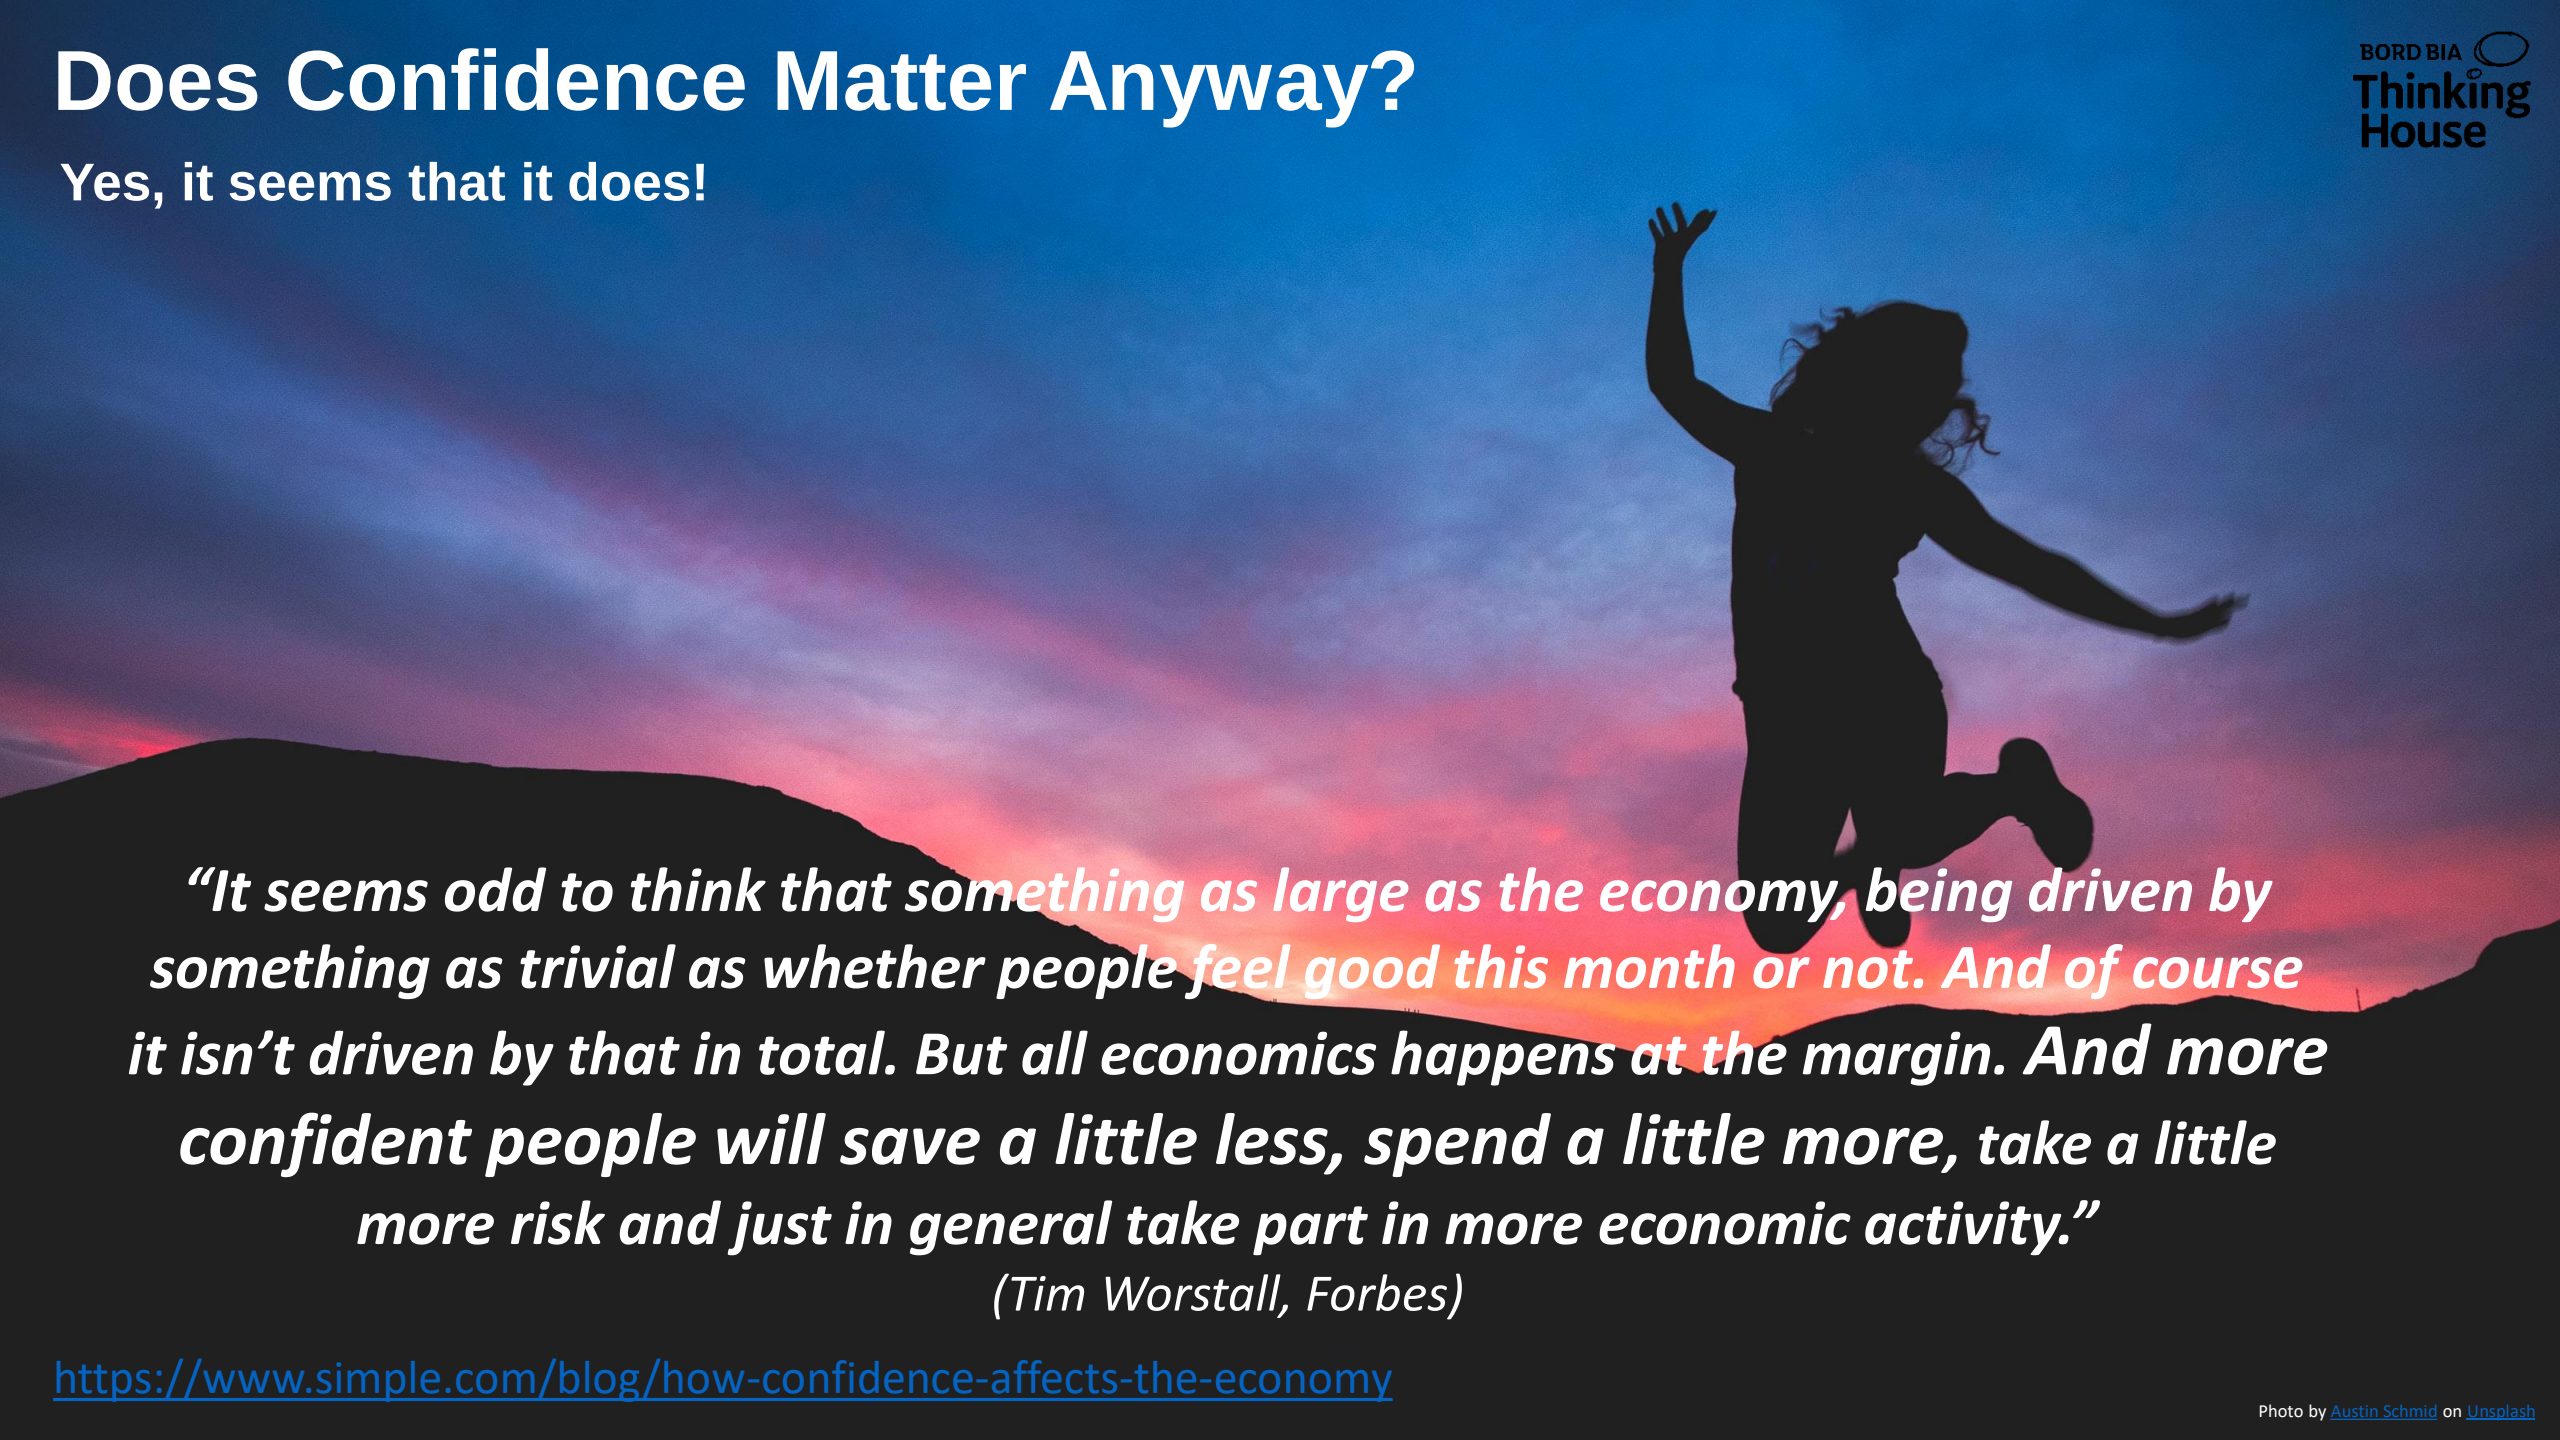
BORD BIA
Thinking House

Photo by Austin Schmid on Unsplash

Does Confidence Matter Anyway?

BORD BIA Thinking House

Yes, it seems that it does!



"It seems odd to think that something as large as the economy, being driven by something as trivial as whether people feel good this month or not. And of course it isn't driven by that in total. But all economics happens at the margin. And more confident people will save a little less, spend a little more, take a little more risk and just in general take part in more economic activity."

(Tim Worstall, Forbes)

https://www.simple.com/blog/how-confidence-affects-the-economy

Photo by Austin Schmid on Unsplash

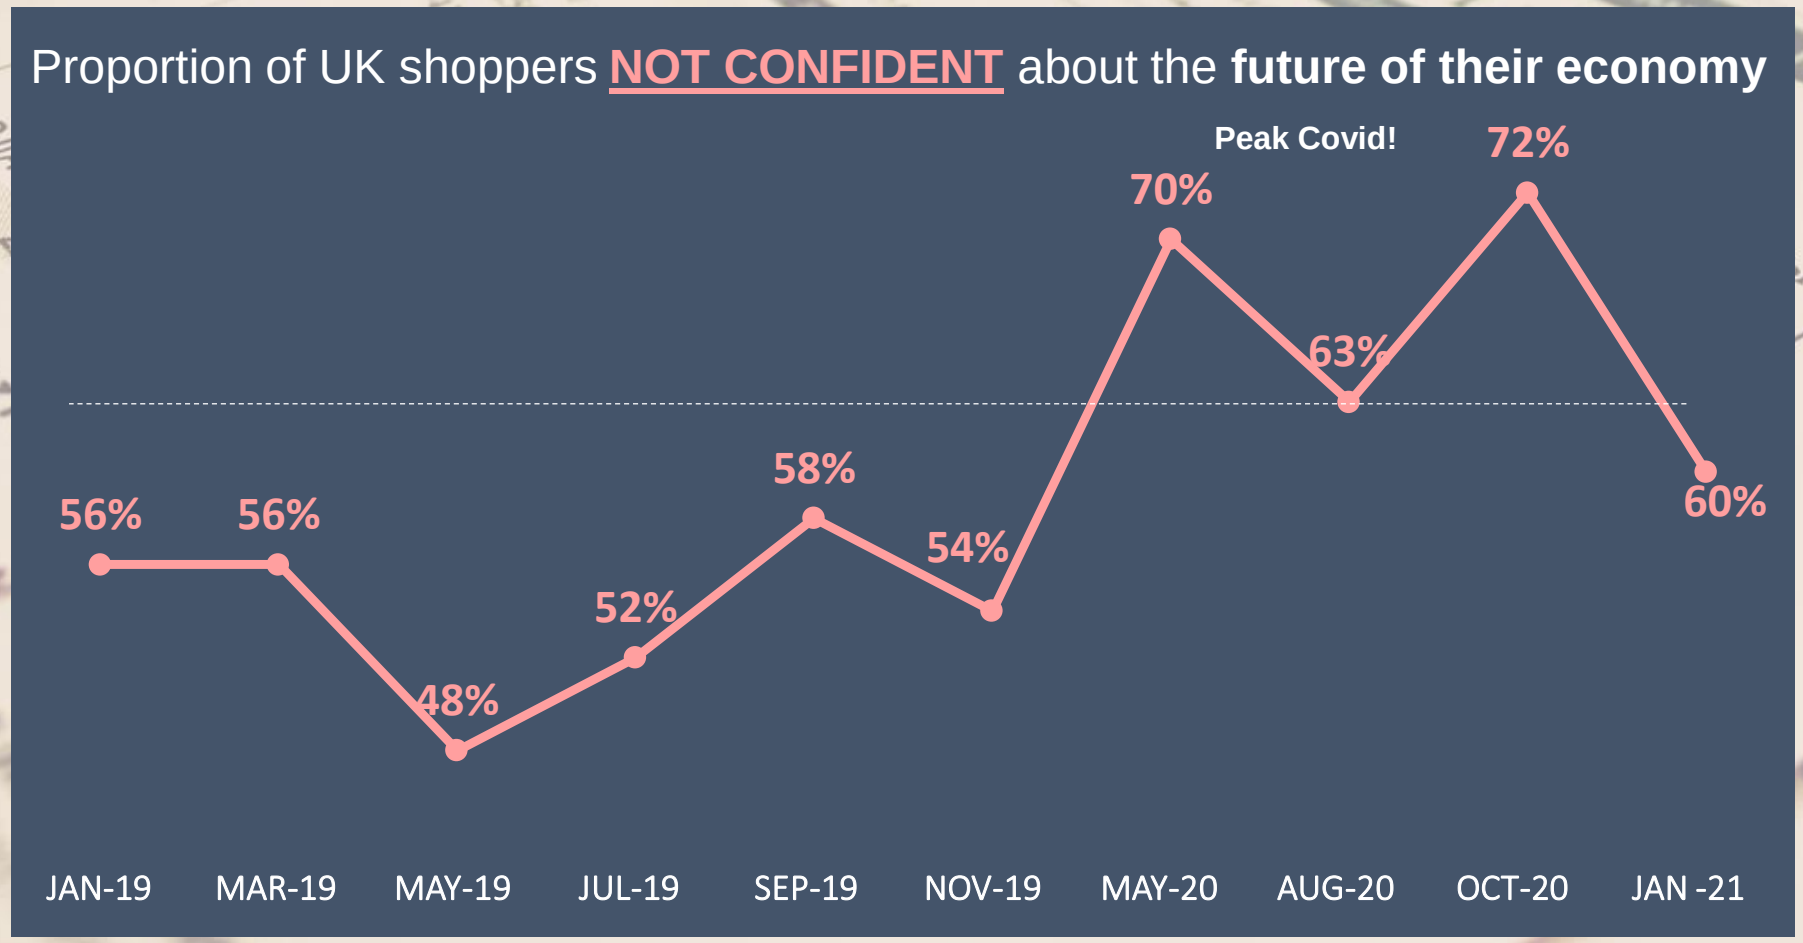
BORD BIA
Thinking House
60% in the UK feel that the current economic situation has had a NEGATIVE effect on their confidence
Photo by Austin Schmid on Unsplash

Mood of the Nation and Economic Outlook

BORD BIA Thinking House

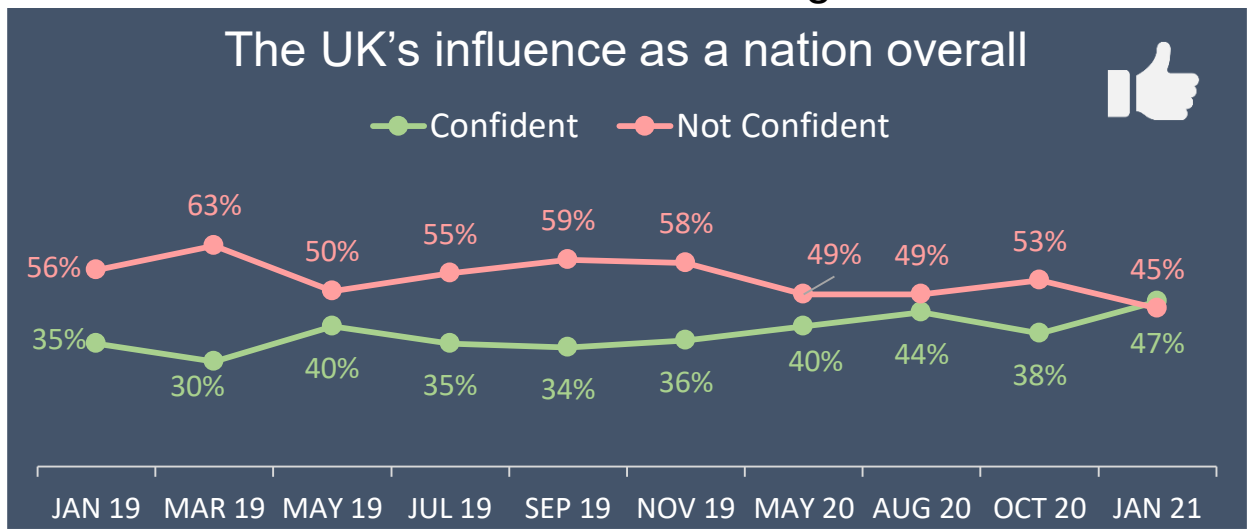
Confidence around economic future is beginning to show some positive signs despite a continued tough market context

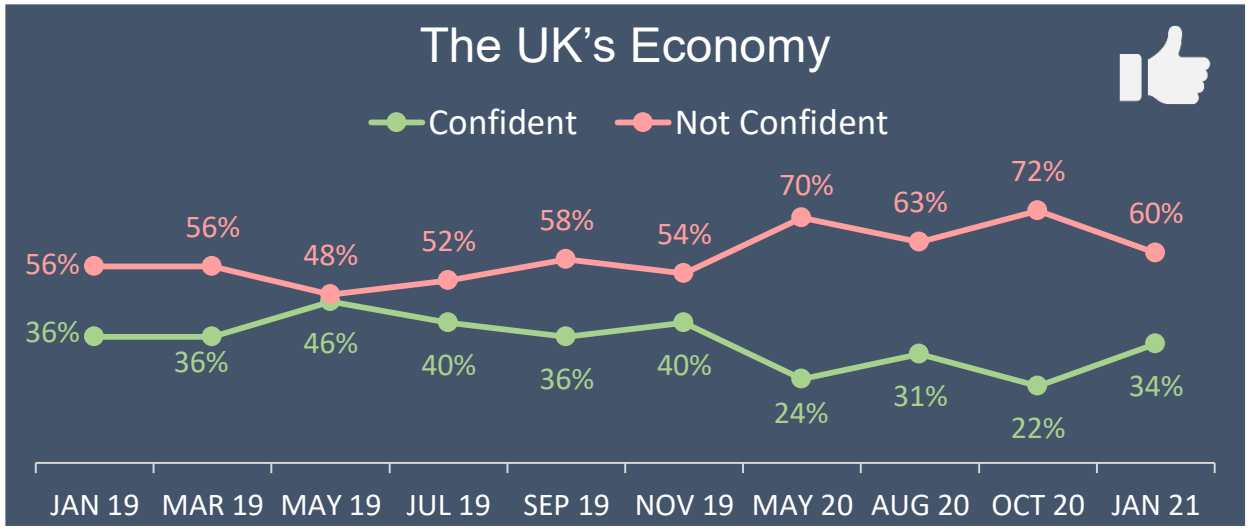
6 in 10 are NOT confident about the future of the UK economy. While this remains at a very high level it is an improvement on late 2020 which saw this figure at 72%.

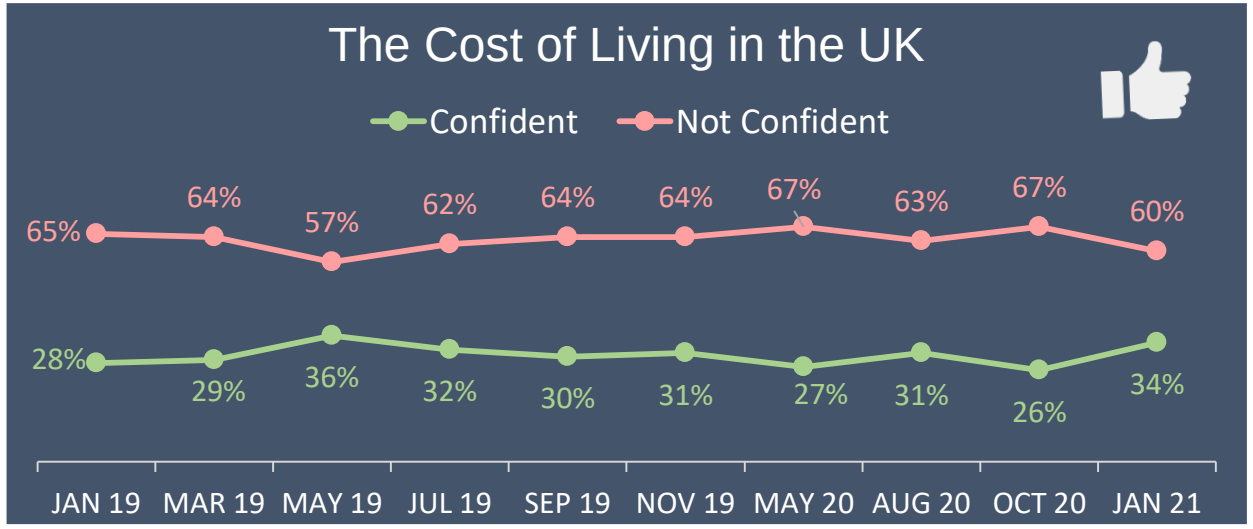


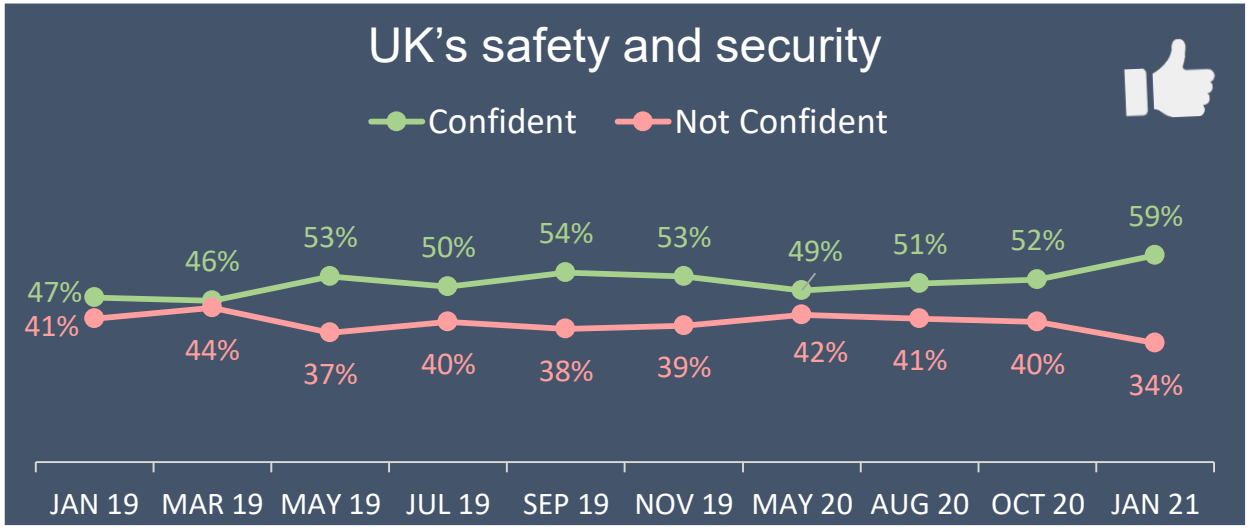
Future Confidence on Key Aspects

Gauging the temperature immediately post-Brexit paints a remarkably optimistic picture with regard to the UK's safety, influence, economy and even the cost of living. Safety and influence scores are at an all time high.





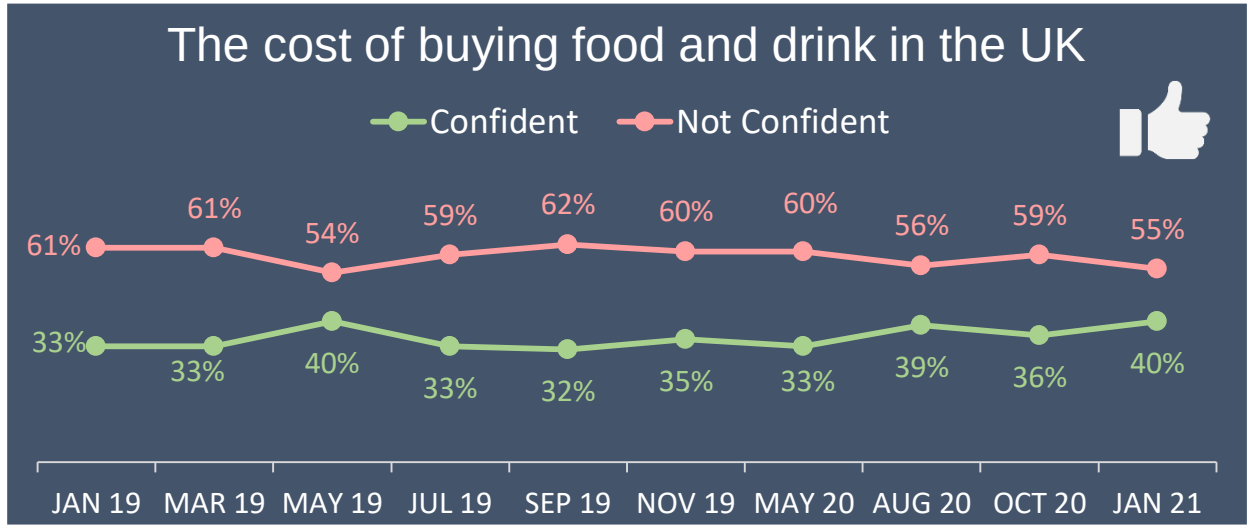


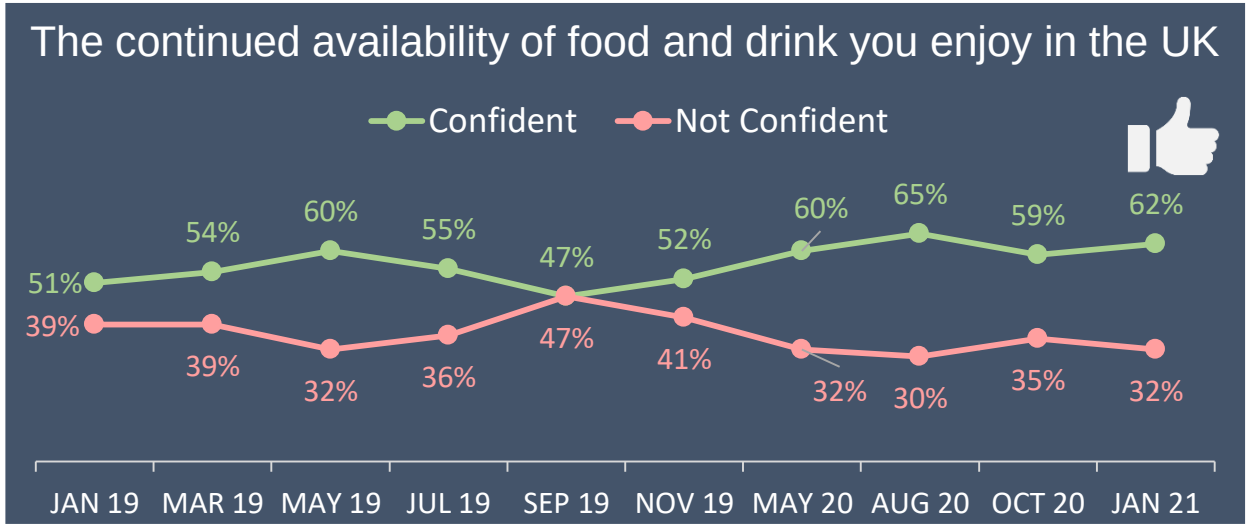


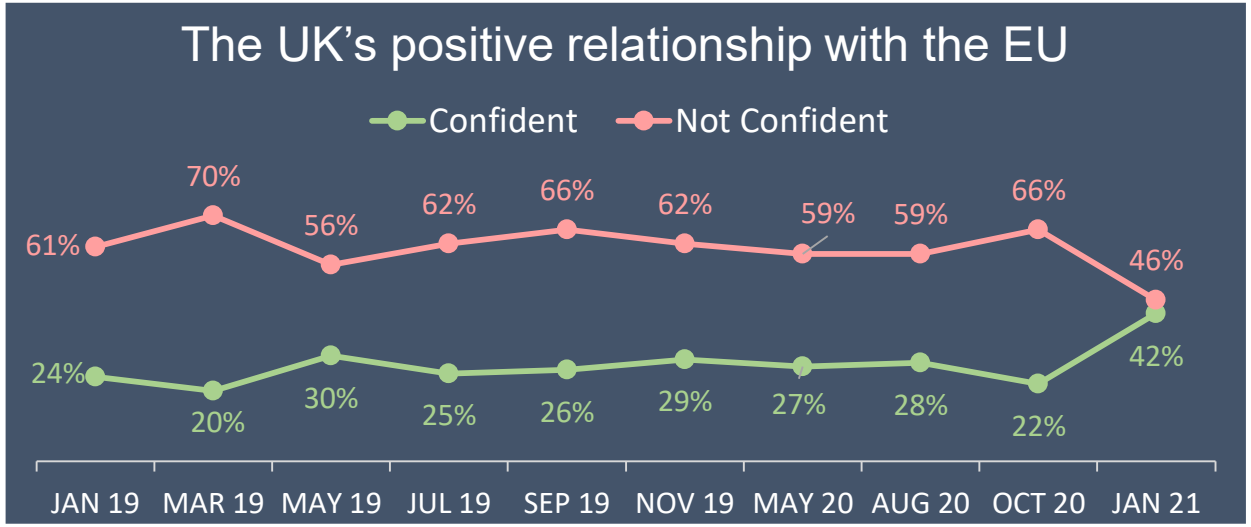
Looking at each of the areas below, how confident are you feeling at the moment about the future of each?

Future Confidence on Key Aspects

UK citizens believe that Brexit has cleared the air for a more positive relationship with the EU; this score too is at an all time high for this tracking series. And, despite the evidence in the media, they are feeling more confident about the cost and availability of food and drink in the future.







Looking at each of the areas below, how confident are you feeling at the moment about the future of each?

Personal Impact

BORD BIA
Thinking House

Photo by Alex Perez on Unsplash

Mood of the Nation and Economic Outlook

BORD BIA Thinking House

Current economic situation having an increasingly negative impact on shoppers

The impact of clarity on consumers is remarkable; we see a significant recovery in sentiment with a 23% drop in negative sentiment and double-digit improvements in terms of safety & security, personal finances and their job security and prospects despite Covid-19.

39%

of UK shoppers feel their optimism for the future has been negatively impacted as a result of the current economic situation
(down A MASSIVE 23% since Oct '20)

27%

of UK shoppers feel their safety and security has been negatively impacted as a result of the current economic situation
(down 10% since Oct '20)

30%

of UK shoppers feel their personal finances has been negatively impacted as a result of the current economic situation
(down 17% since Oct '20)

21%

of UK shoppers feel their job security and prospects have been negatively impacted as a result of the current economic situation
(down 11% since Oct'20)

Personal Impact of Economic Situation on…

Bord Bia Thinking House

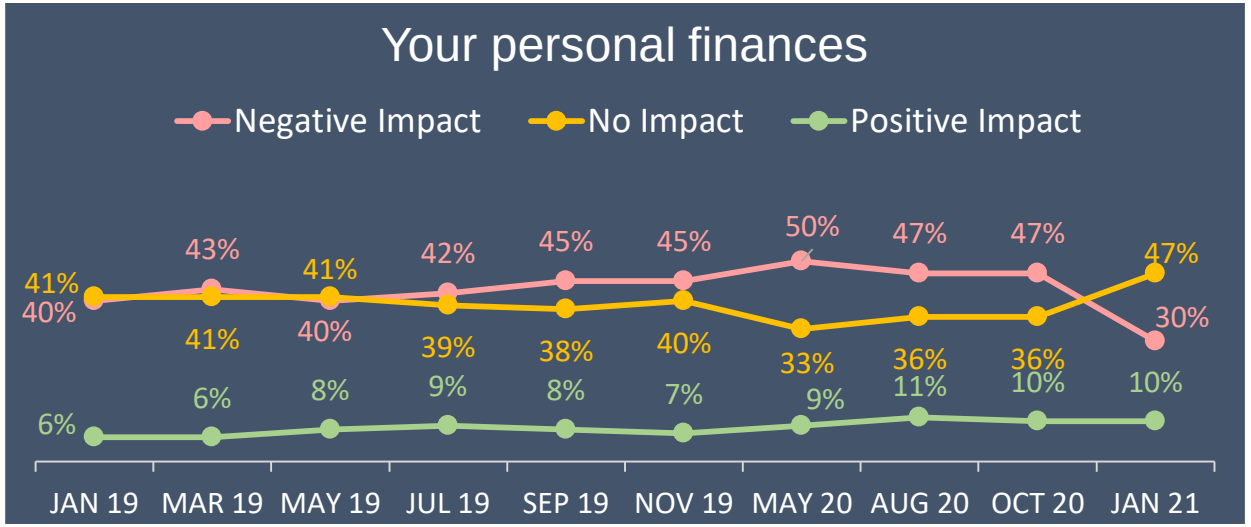
Across all metrics the mood music is positive in terms of the economy's impact on consumer's lives, but most notably general optimism has seen a remarkable improvement.

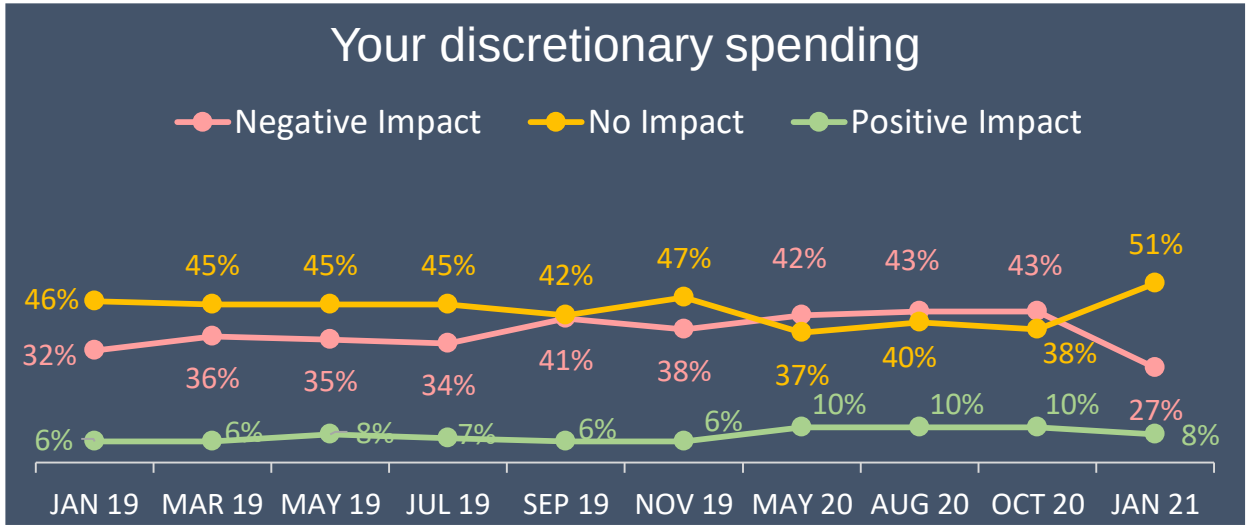
To what extent do you think the current economic situation is having a negative or positive impact for you personally in each of the following areas?

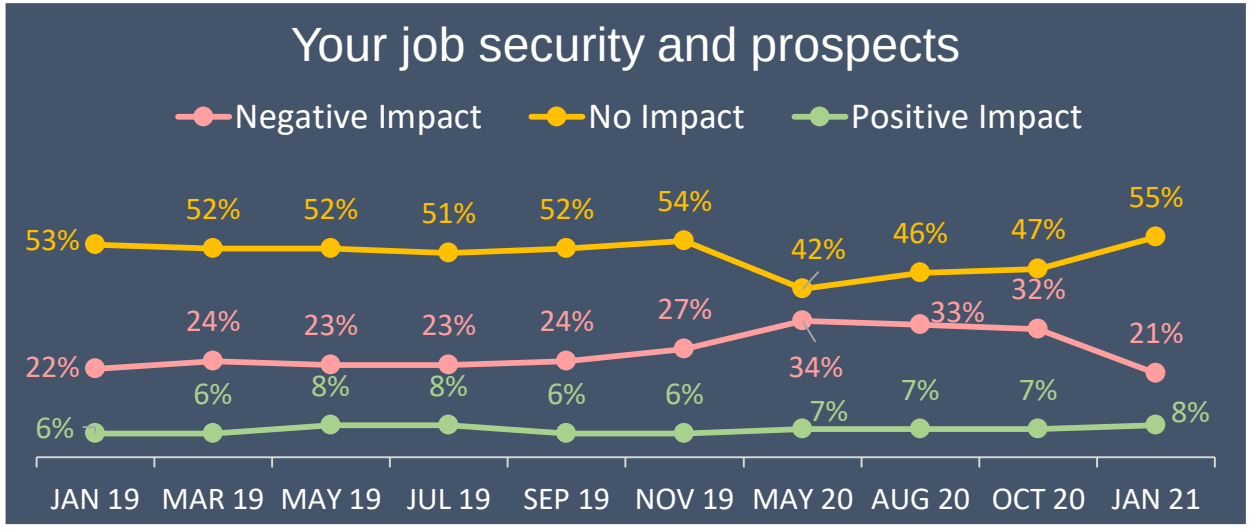
Personal Impact of Economic Situation on…

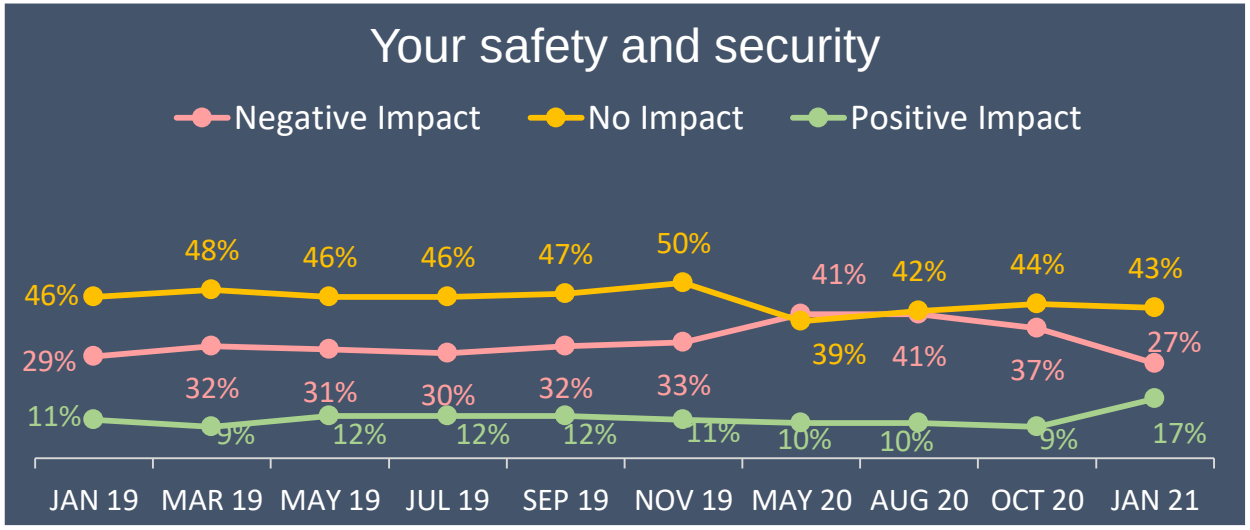
BORD BIA Thinking House

….. Likewise, we see that the perceived impact on their finances is relatively benign and it is considerably better than in Q3 2020 despite the “double dip” recession narrative in the media.









To what extent do you think the that the current Brexit deal is having a negative or positive impact for you personally in each of the following areas?

Future Outlook

BORD BIA Thinking House

Photo by Garidy Sanders on Unsplash

Mood of the Nation and Economic Outlook

BORD BIA Thinking House

And what about food & drink? Plenty of concern still exists with the Brexit situation

While the shifts are small, they are consistently downward again this round in terms of the future cost, quality, availability and variety of food and drink that they buy for their households as a result of the current Brexit situation.

63%

of UK shoppers are concerned about the future cost of the food and drink they buy for their household as a result of the current Brexit situation (down 4% since October '20)

42%

of UK shoppers are concerned about the future quality of the food and drink they buy for their household as a result of the current Brexit situation (down 9% since October'20)

46%

of UK shoppers are concerned about the future availability of the food and drink they buy for their household as a result of the current Brexit situation (down 2% since October'20)

39%

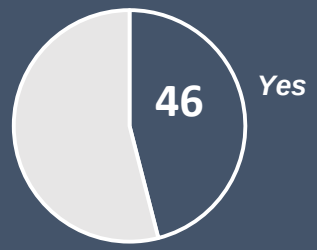
of UK shoppers are concerned about the future variety of the food and drink they buy for their household as a result of the current Brexit situation (down 4% since October'20)

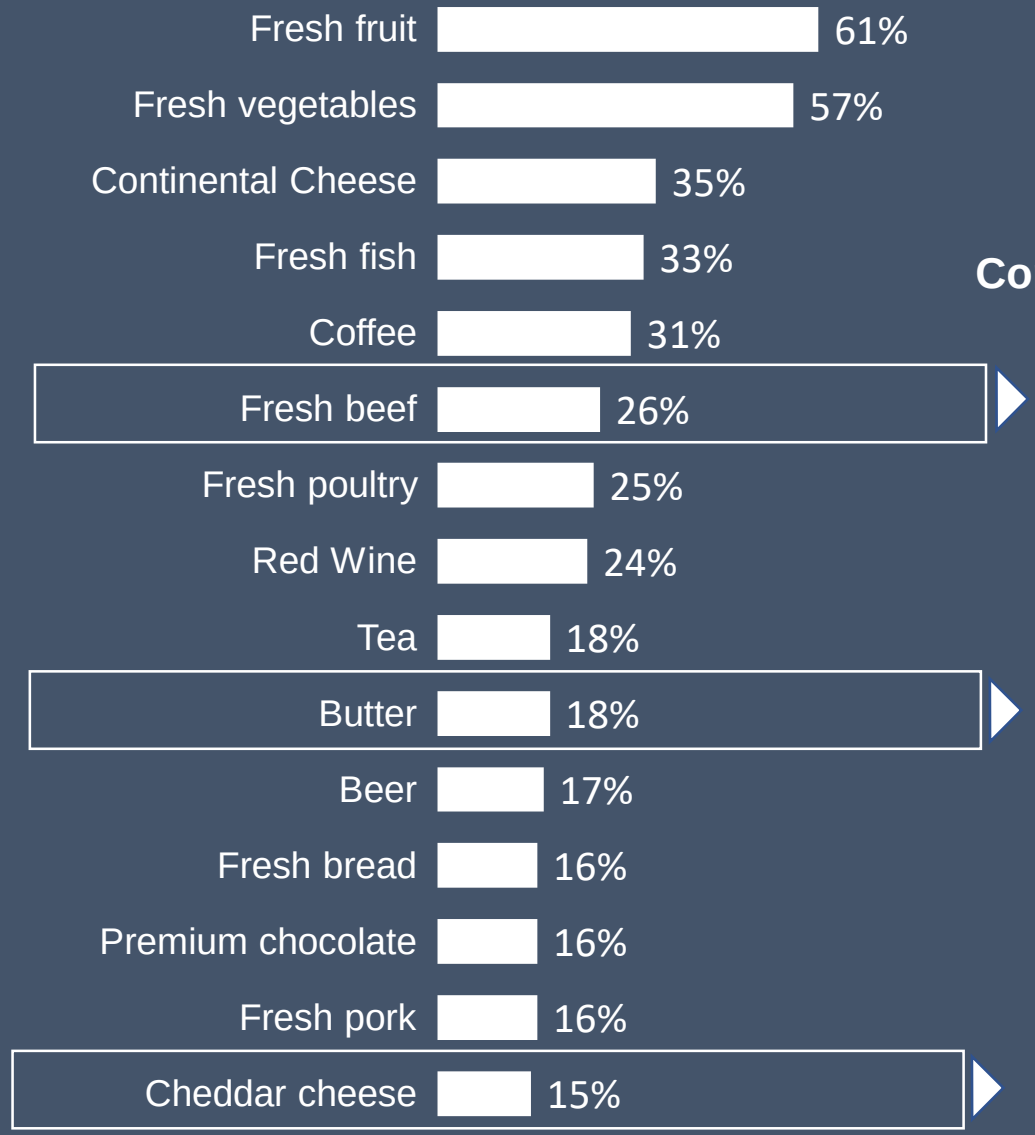
Foods most Concerned about Availability post-Brexit

Base: All concerned with future availability of Food and Drink, n=509

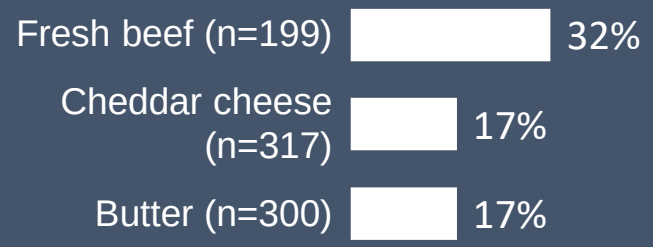
BORD BIA Thinking House

Concerned about future availability of food & drink?





Concern over Availability among Regular Buyers of each food type…



And which, if any, of the following type(s) of food and drink are you concerned about with regard to availability of these post - Brexit?

How is Ireland viewed in the UK?

BORD BIA
Thinking House

The View from Across the Sea

The affinity of UK shoppers towards the Rep. of Ireland is still evidenced in their attitudes towards food and drink. UK shoppers trust Rep. of Ireland food and drink more than any other EU country, has greater environmental sustainability credentials and is considered the best alternative to UK food.

UK shoppers trust food and drink from the Rep. of Ireland more than any other EU country or the EU itself

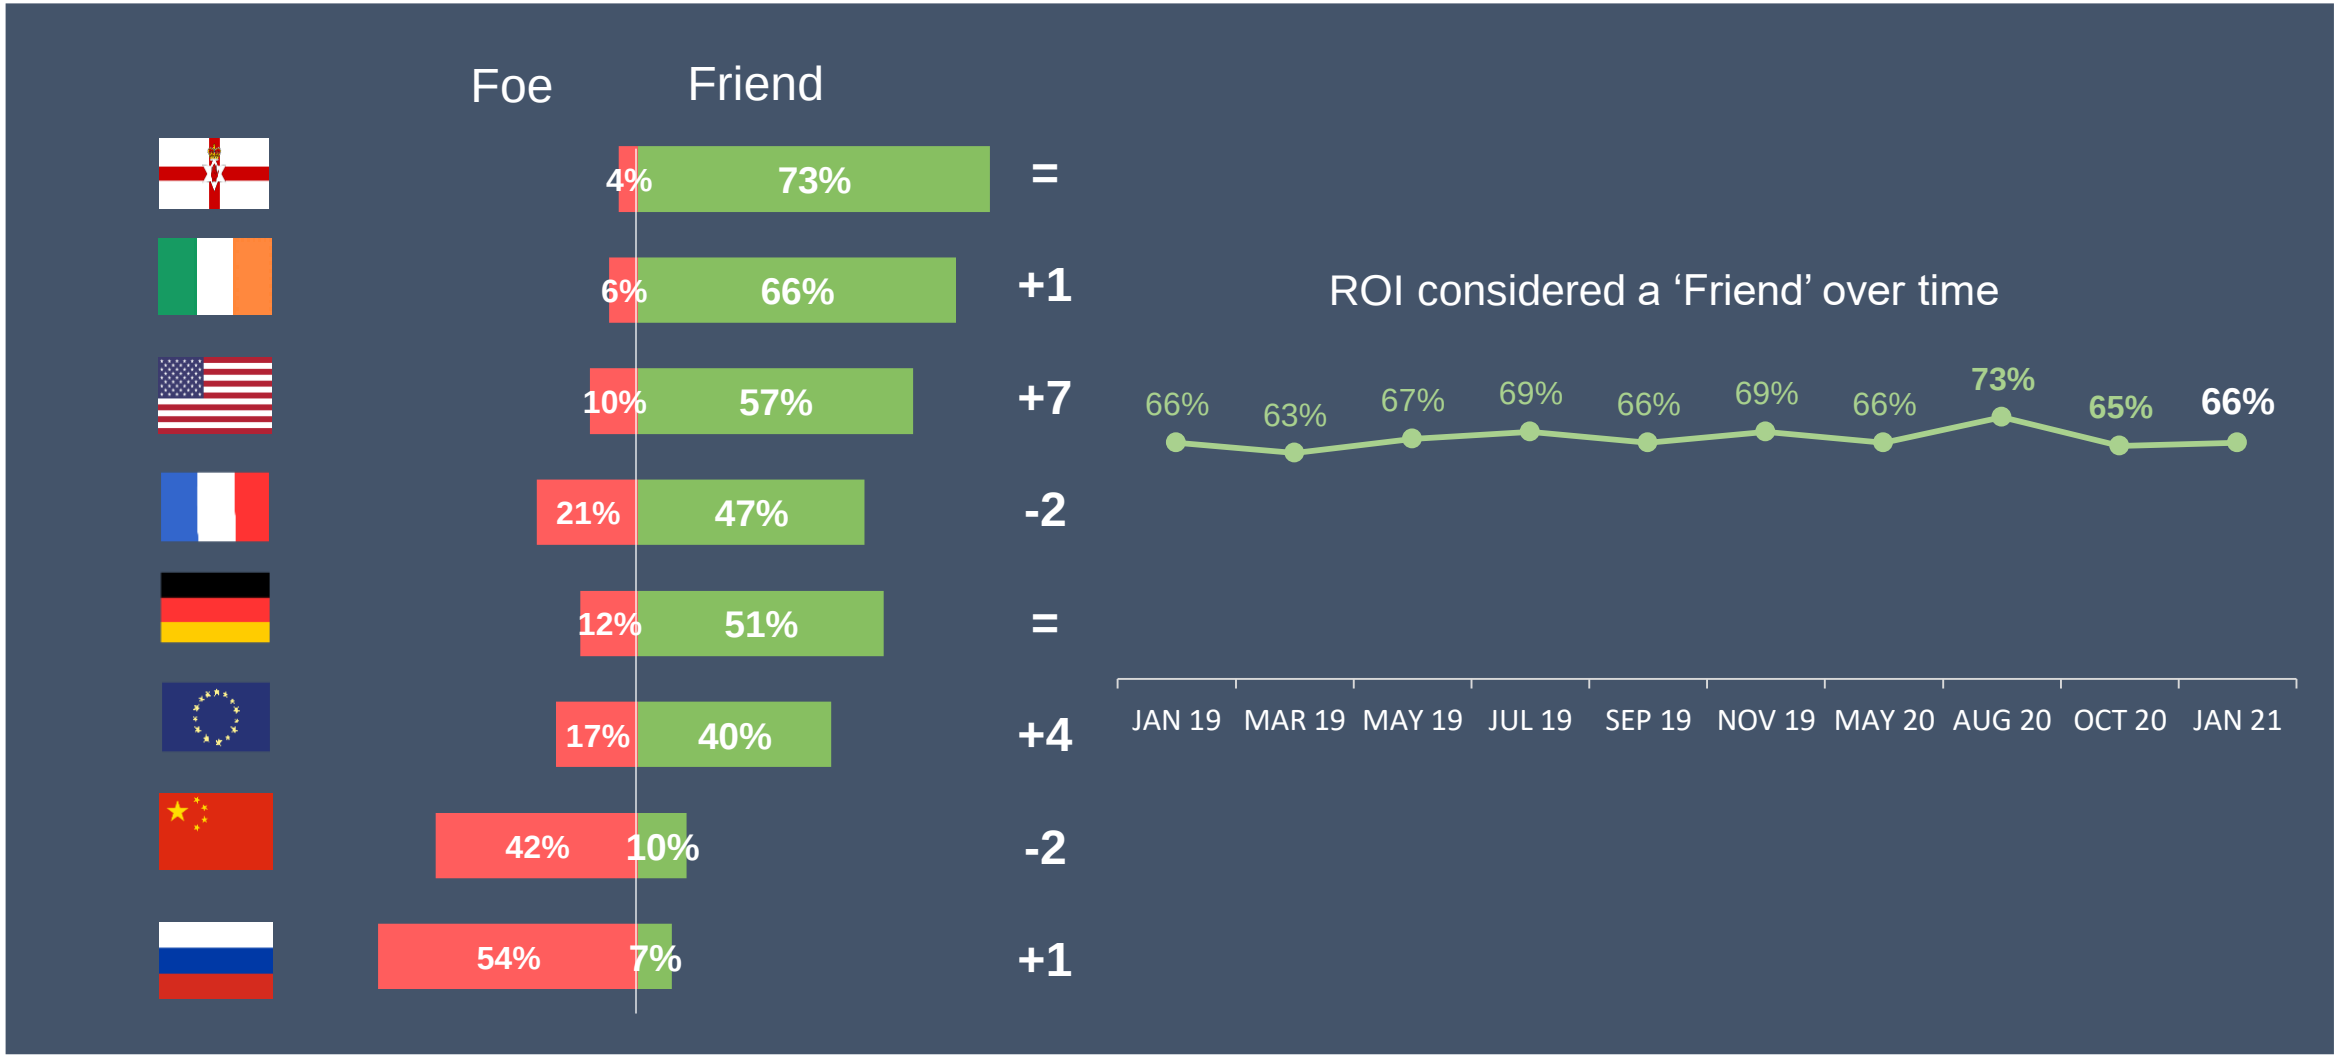
Food and drink from the Rep. of Ireland is considered the best alternative to UK food and consumers are reassured to know that their food and drink is from there.

UK shoppers believe the Rep. of Ireland produce their food in an environmentally sustainable way more than any other EU country or the EU itself

OPINIONS

Considered a Friend or Foe to the UK…

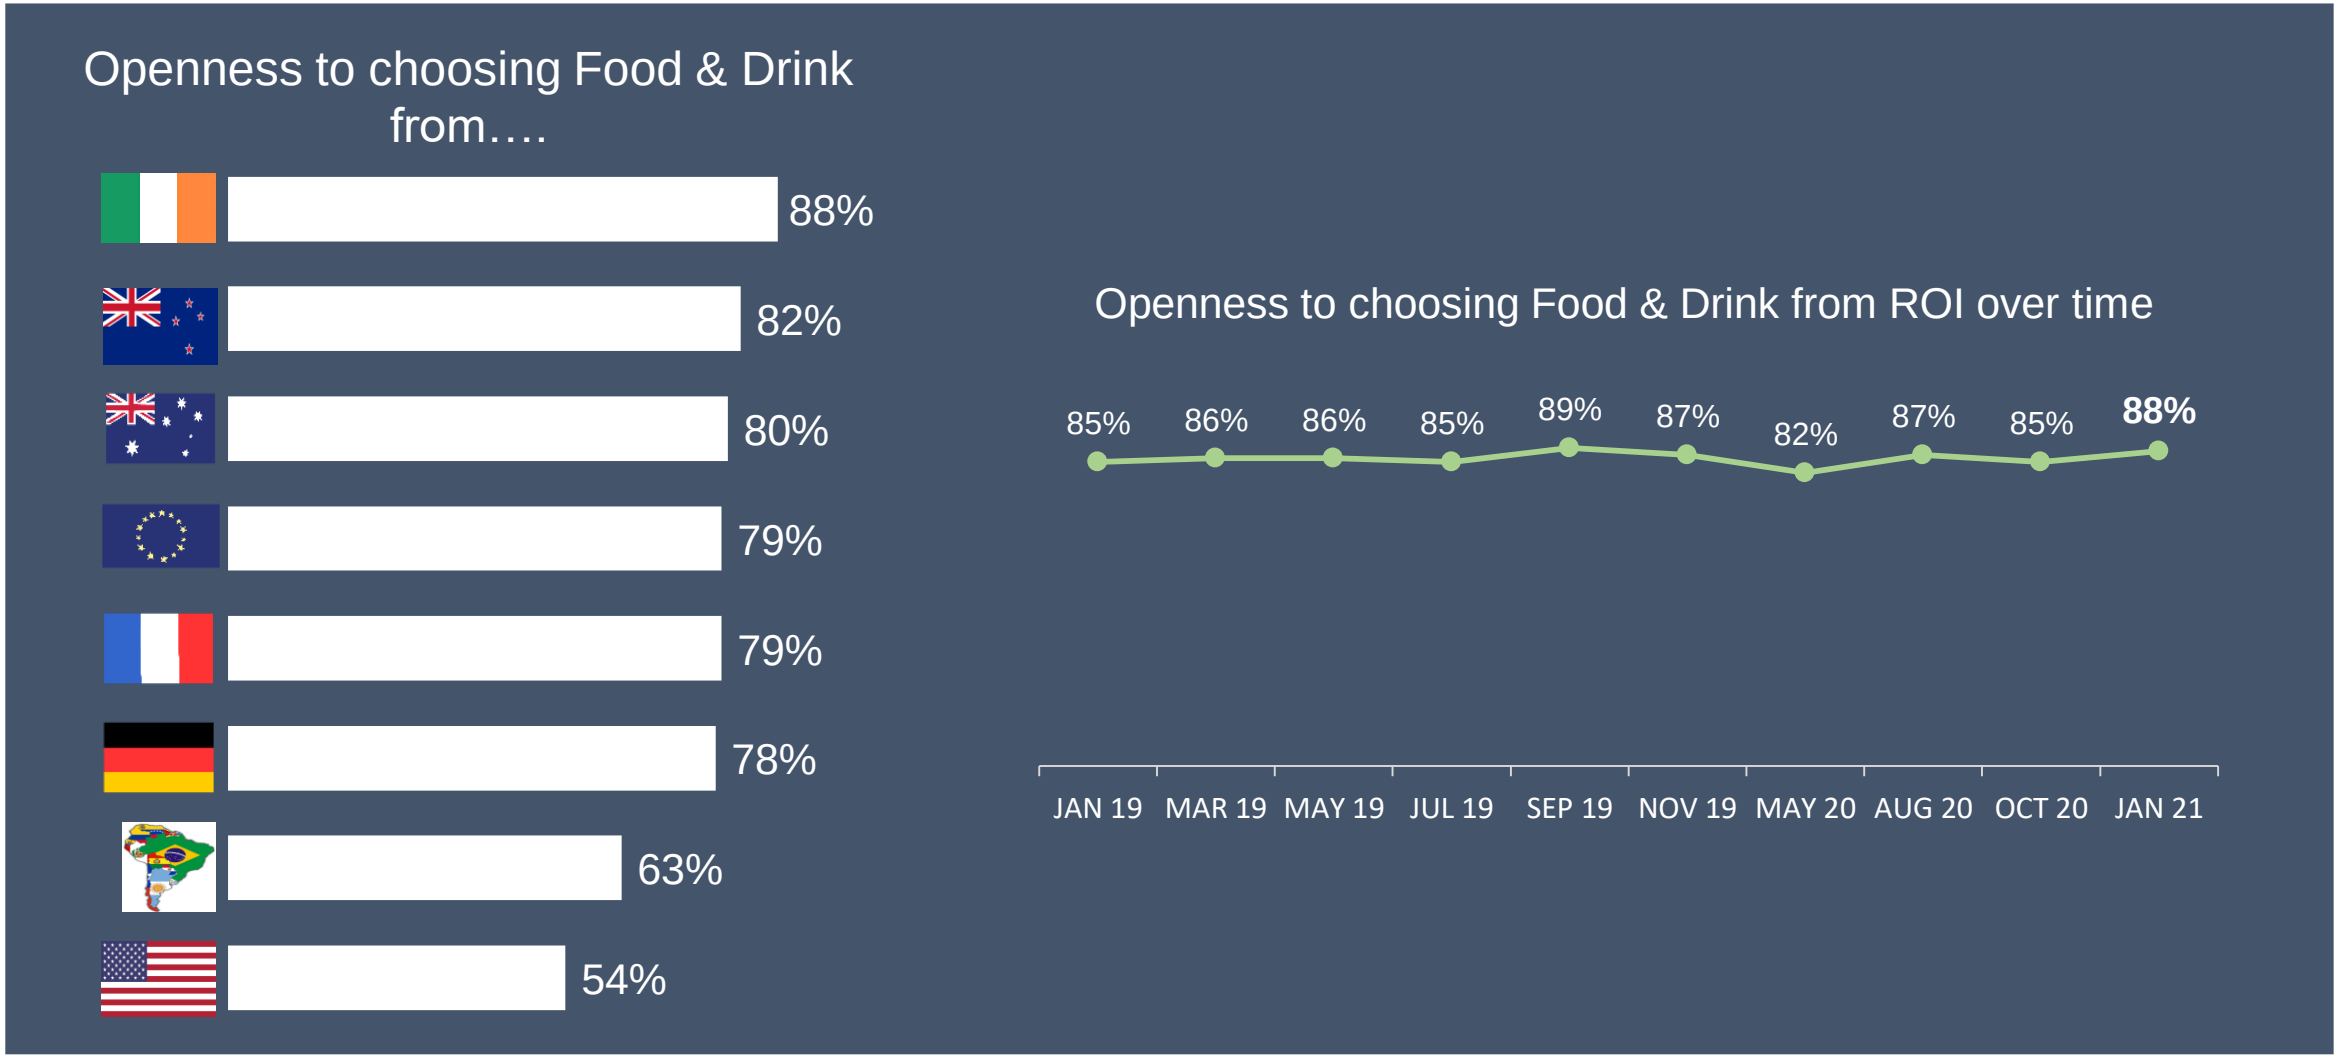
The strong affinity UK shoppers hold for the Rep. of Ireland has fallen back from an all time high in August 2020 to a level similar to those seen in 2019. This is one to watch as Brexit continues to evolve.



For each of the following countries/ regions, would you currently consider them a 'friend' or 'foe' of the UK's?

Openness to choosing Food & Drink from…

UK shoppers are most open to choosing Rep. of Ireland food and drink from all the non-UK markets tested and the level of openness to Irish food and drink remains consistent over time.



To what extent are you open to choosing food and drink from these markets currently?

The View from Across the Sea

BORD BIA Thinking House

As tensions still remain highly visible in the UK regarding the future trading relationship with the EU, and while affinity to Ireland remains strong we cannot afford to rest on our laurels as some of these metrics show signs of coming under pressure of UK shoppers consider the Rep. of Ireland to be a friend of the UK this has remained strong over time.

66% (+1)

Rep. of Ireland considered more of a friend to the UK compared to any other EU country or the EU itself

88% (+3)

of UK shoppers are open to choosing food and drink from the Rep. of Ireland – higher than any non-UK country

The View from Across the Sea

BORD BIA Thinking House

In times like this TRUST is key to shoppers – and Rep. of Ireland food & drink produce has this

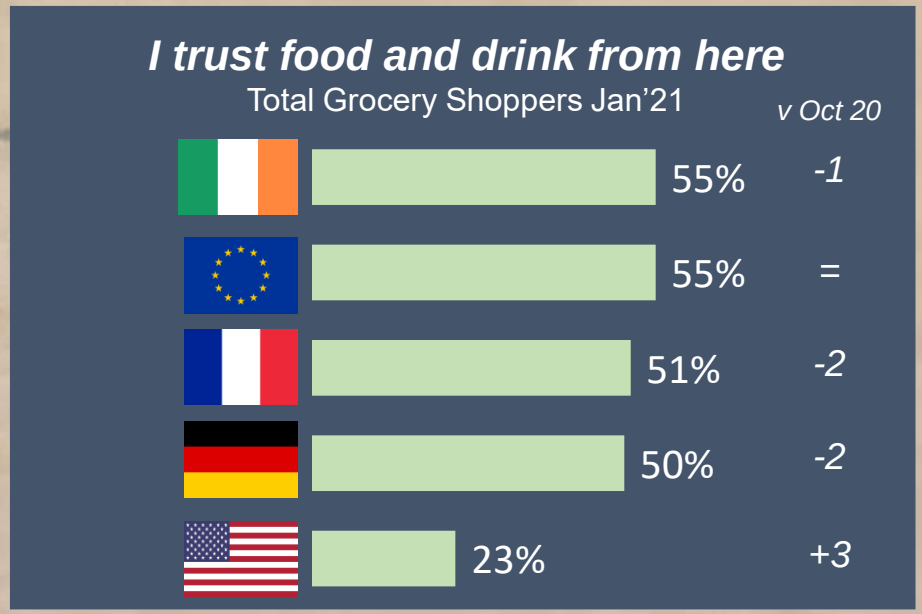
The Bord Bia Covid-19 Indicators work show that 15% of UK families are choosing brands they know and trust more often now as a result of the Covid-19 situation.

Source: Bord Bia/Opinions, October 2020

The reality is that the Rep. of Ireland is the most trusted European origin for food and drink (outside the UK) among shoppers but only just and the gap is tightening…

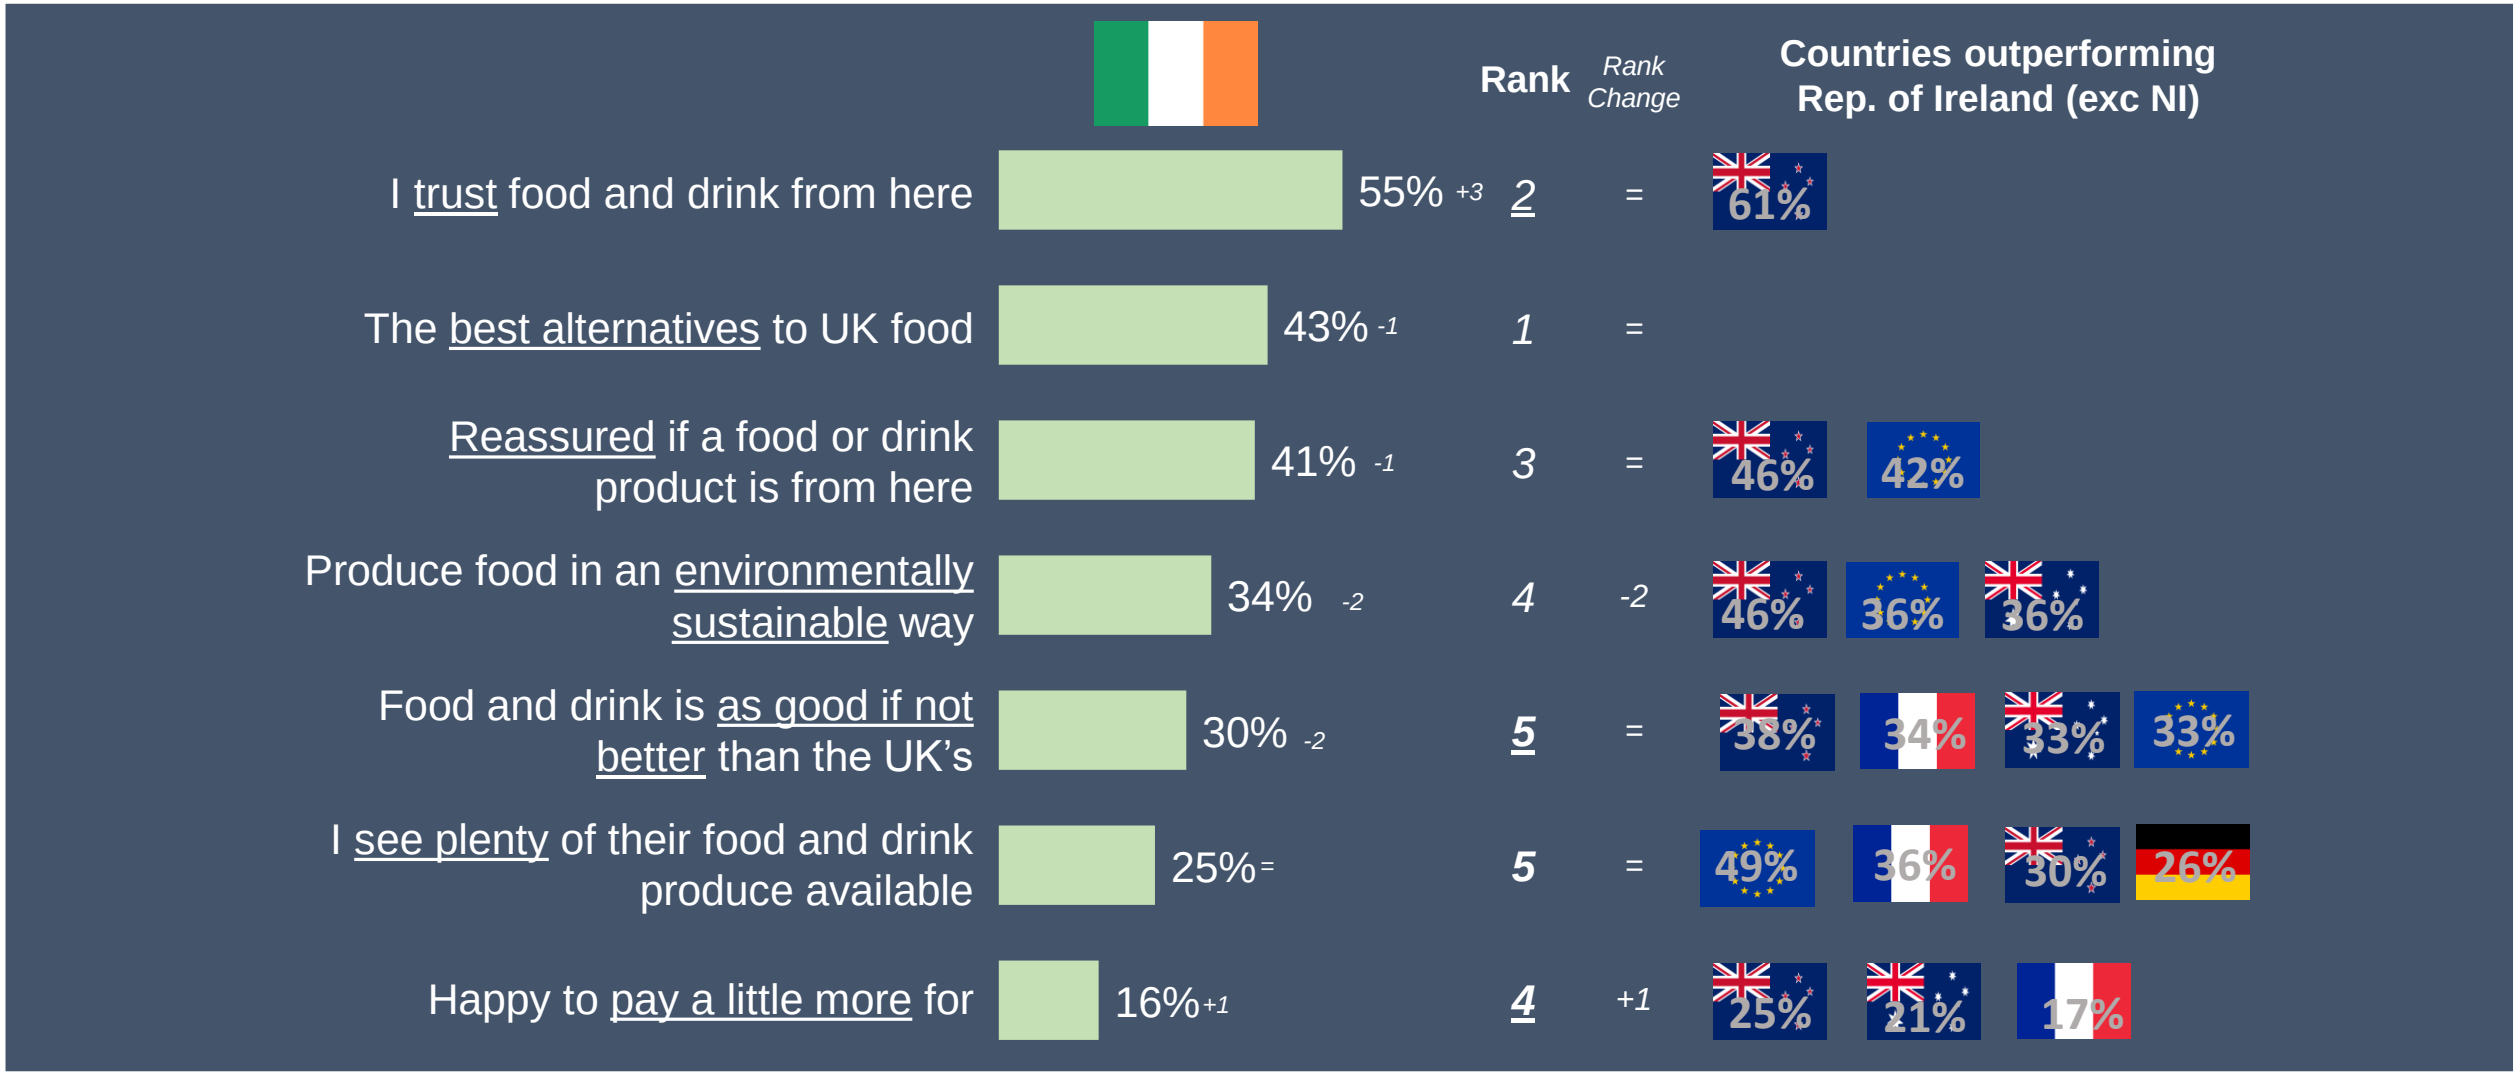
Given the increasing importance of TRUST in the grocery environment currently, it appears paramount that Irish producers reinforce the trust that UK shoppers have for Irish food and drink produce when engaging with retailers post Brexit.

Northern Ireland trumps ROI marginally at 57% trust scores.



Origin Equity for Food & Drink

Ireland does well with regard to equity but has lost some ranking positions.



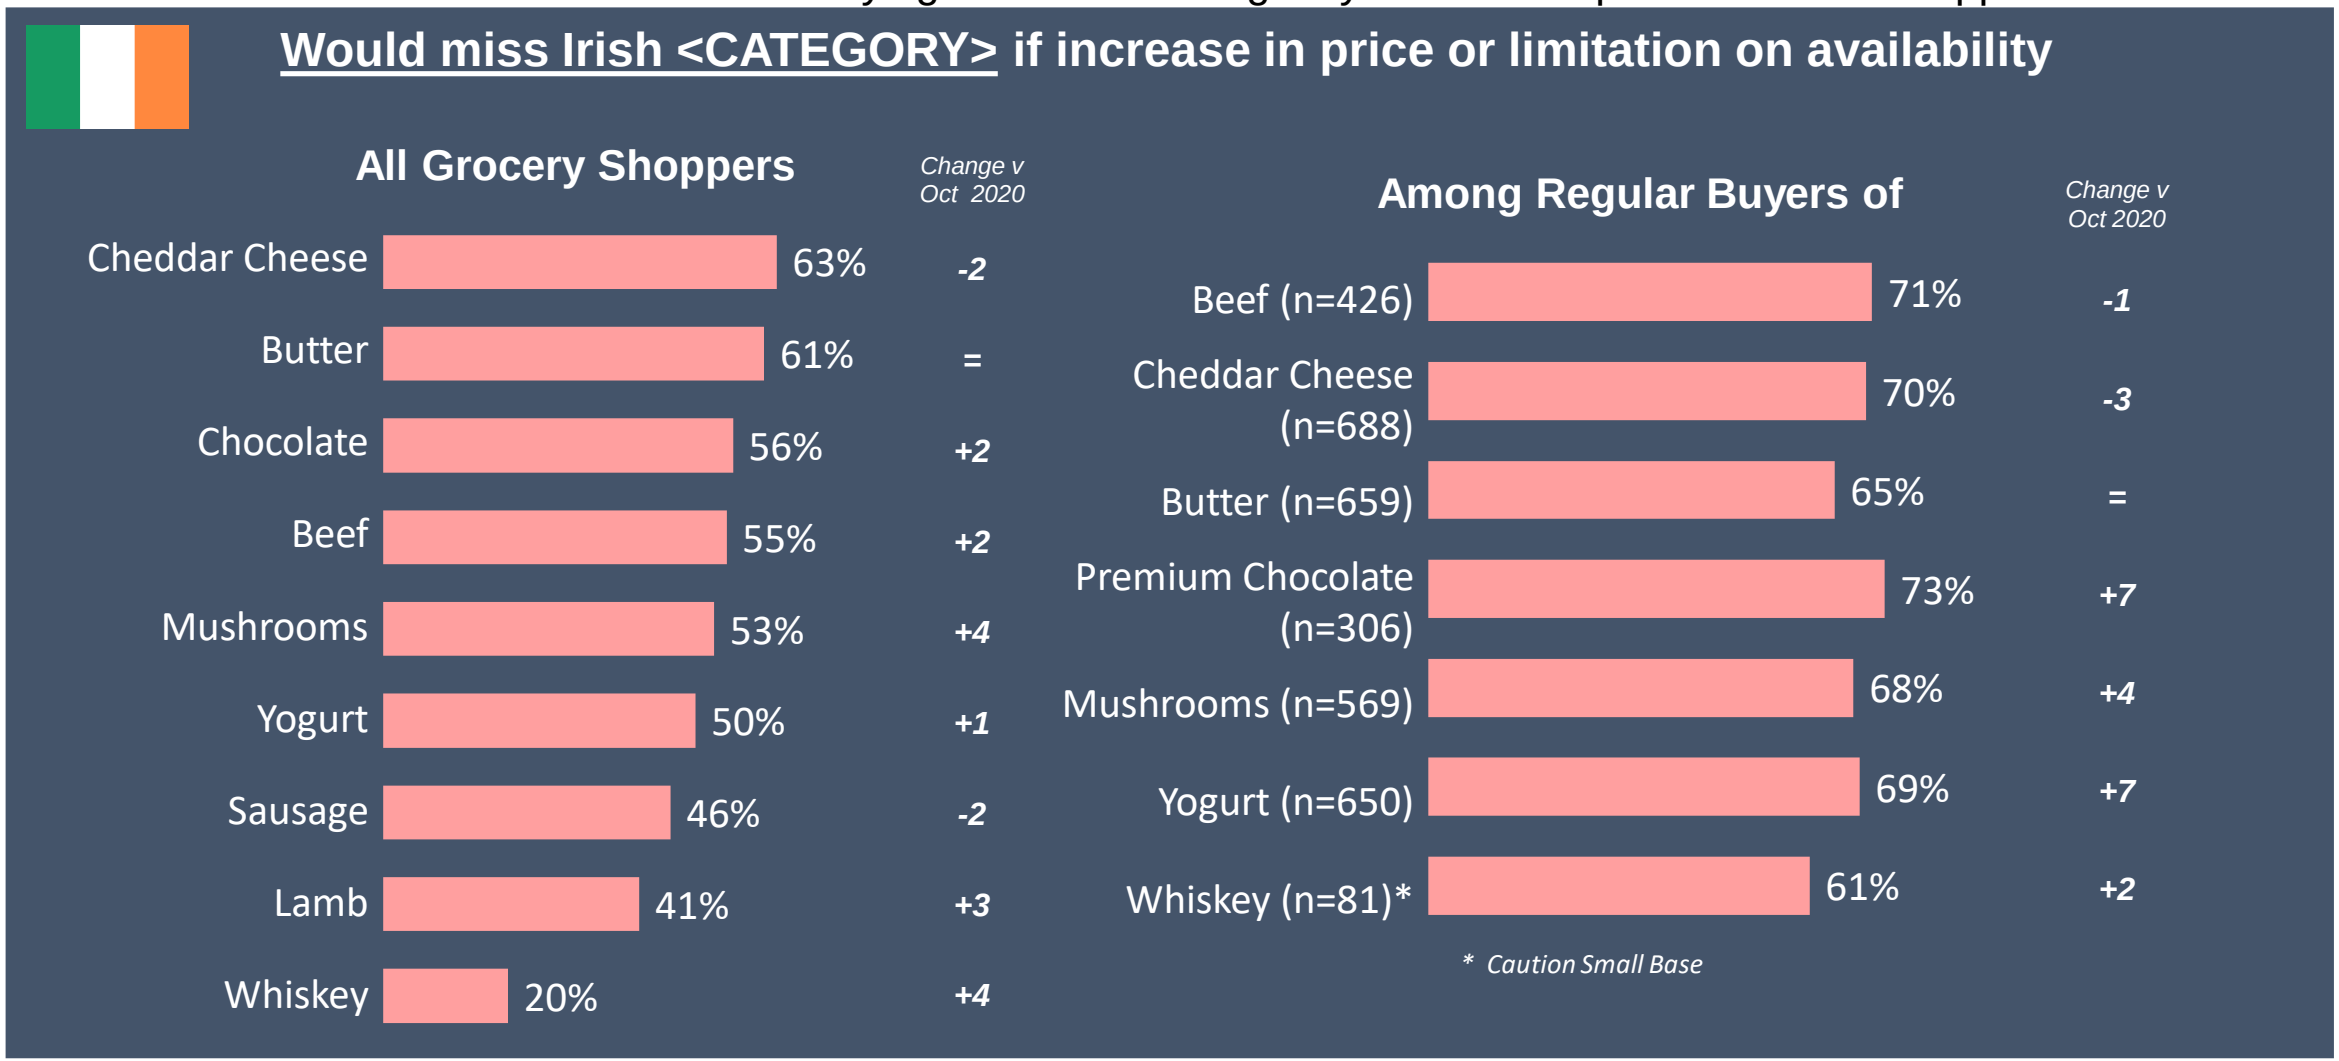
Looking at this list of things that other people have said about origins of food and drink, can you please choose the countries/regions to which you believe each applies

Extent of missing Irish Food & Drink

BORD BIA Thinking House

Clear to see that Irish beef, cheddar and butter would be the most missed categories among regular buyers of these categories if an increase in price or limitation on availability occurred as a result of Brexit. However, it is considered less of an issue over time as we see that the number saying this is something they would miss post-Brexit has dropped.

Would miss Irish <CATEGORY> if increase in price or limitation on availability



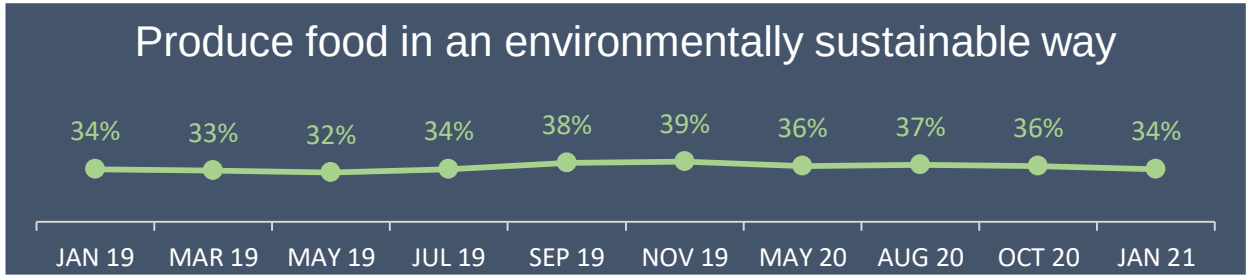
Now thinking about Irish food and drink, imagine a scenario where there is significant increase in price or limitation on availability due to Brexit. To what extent would you miss each of the following, if at all?

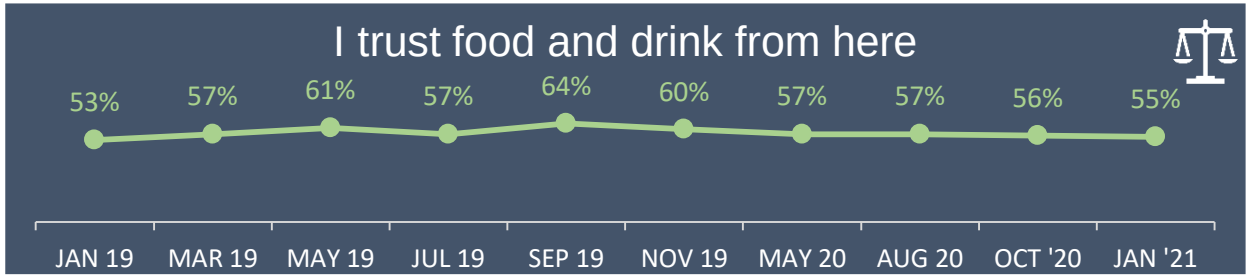
Rep. of Ireland Equity for Food & Drink over time

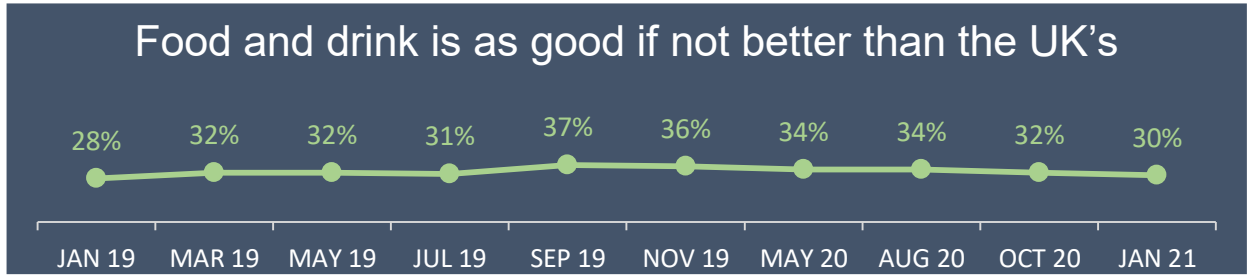
BORD BIA Thinking House

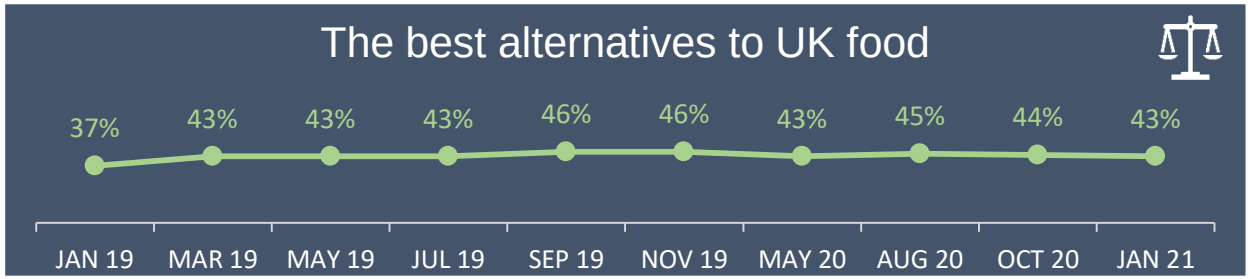
Significant decline

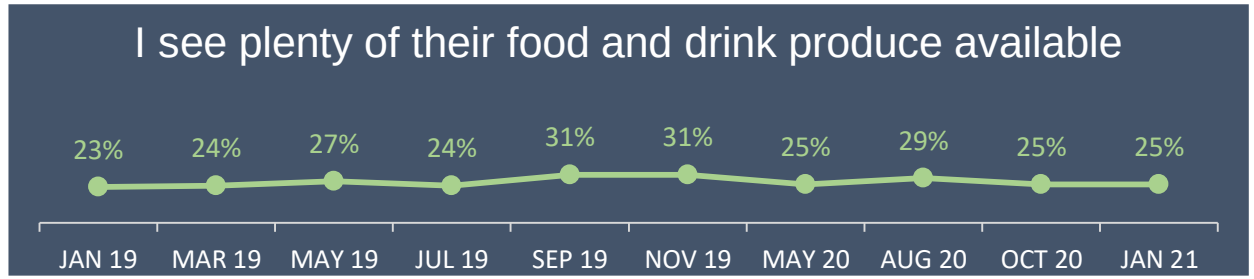
We can clearly see continued strong brand equity behind Irish food & drink among UK shoppers, but again there are some marginal declines creeping in this round.

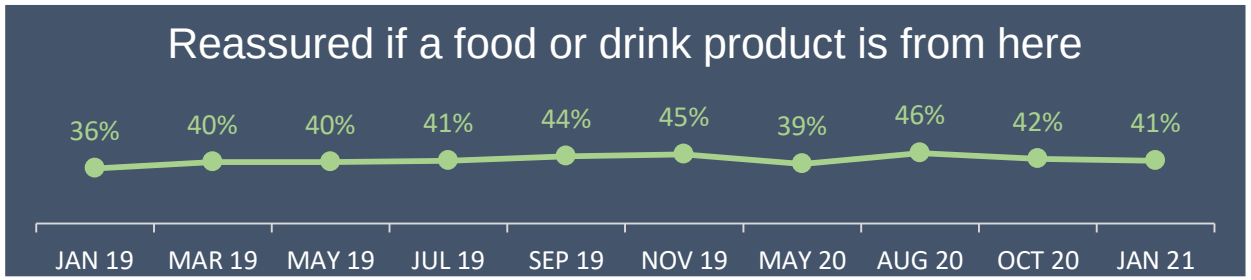


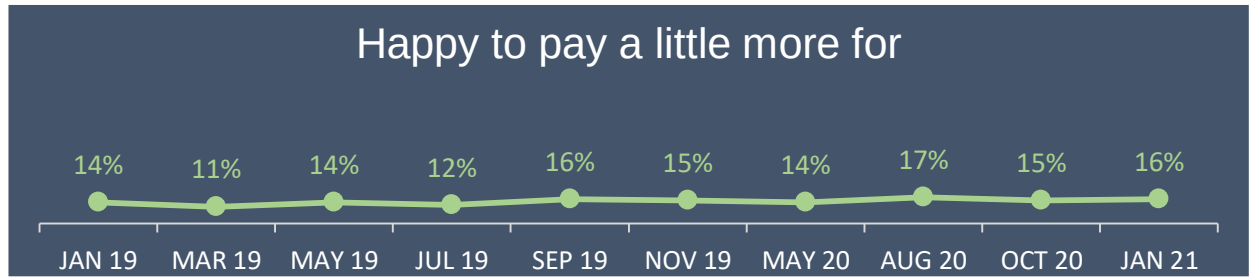












Looking at this list of things that other people have said about origins of food and drink, can you please choose the countries/regions to which you believe each applies

Category Specific Support

BORD BIA
Thinking House

The Support for Irish Beef in the UK

BORD BIA Thinking House

Current Brexit Impact

45% of UK beef shoppers are concerned about the future availability of the food and drink they buy as a result of the current Brexit situation

43% of UK beef shoppers are concerned about the future quality of the food and drink they buy as a result of the current Brexit situation

Affinity for Rep. of Ireland

ROI deemed significantly more 'local' than any other country outside of UK

UK beef shoppers see ROI as the best alternative to UK food

ROI is the most trusted European origin for food & drink among UK beef shoppers

Retailer Engagement Support

71% of UK beef shoppers would miss Irish beef if there was a significant increase in price or limitation on availability

The Support for Irish Butter in the UK

BORD BIA Thinking House

Current Brexit Impact

45% of UK butter buyers are concerned about the future availability of the food and drink they buy as a result of the current Brexit situation

42% of UK butter buyers are concerned about the future quality of the food and drink they buy as a result of the current Brexit situation

Affinity for Rep. of Ireland

ROI deemed significantly more 'local' than any other country outside of UK

UK butter buyers see ROI as the best alternative to UK food

ROI is the most trusted origin outside of the UK for food & drink among UK butter buyers

Retailer Engagement Support

65% of UK butter buyers would miss Irish butter if there was a significant increase in price or limitation on availability

The Support for Irish Cheddar Cheese in the UK

BORD BIA Thinking House

Current Brexit Impact

46% of UK cheddar buyers are concerned about the future availability of the food and drink they buy as a result of the current Brexit situation

42% of UK cheddar buyers are concerned about the future quality of the food and drink they buy as a result of the current Brexit situation

Affinity for Rep. of Ireland

ROI deemed significantly more 'local' than any other country outside of UK

UK cheddar buyers see ROI as the best alternative to UK food

ROI is the most trusted origin outside of the UK for food & drink among UK cheddar buyers

Retailer Engagement Support

70% of UK cheddar buyers would miss Irish cheddar cheese if there was a significant increase in price or limitation on availability

The Support for Irish Mushrooms in the UK

BORD BIA Thinking House

Current Brexit Impact

45% of UK mushroom buyers are concerned about the future availability of the food and drink they buy as a result of the current Brexit situation

45% of UK mushroom buyers are concerned about the future quality of the food and drink they buy as a result of the current Brexit situation

Affinity for Rep. of Ireland

ROI deemed significantly more 'local' than any other country outside of UK

UK mushroom buyers see ROI as the best alternative to UK food

ROI is the most trusted origin outside of the UK for food & drink among UK mushroom buyers

Retailer Engagement Support

68% of UK mushroom buyers would miss Irish mushrooms if there was a significant increase in price or limitation on availability

Thank You

BORD BIA
Thinking House